

Value added test management

Encompass test managers understand the challenges associated with getting a product ready for deployment

Competence, experience and leadership

Effective test management is a skill that calls upon balance and judgement, an ability to impart accurate information with clarity and confidence, and above all to manage people and processes well.

Every Encompass test manager brings a wealth of experience, a desire to work with people and a willingness to pull out all the stops in order to get the product tested.

Encompass test managers have experience with:

- Formulating a test approach that is customised to each project's needs
- Stakeholder management
- Risk management
- Defect management
- Development, implementation and enforcement of QA standards and policies
- Mentoring staff and providing leadership to test teams
- Providing guidance in staffing requirements
- Providing expert advice
- Good communication and presentations skills
- Preparing and tracking test strategy, test plan and test reports
- Tracking test execution to planned execution
- Providing timely and informative reporting metrics to stakeholders who need to make deployment or shipping decisions

Effective test management is a skill that calls upon balance and judgement, an ability to impart accurate information with clarity and confidence, and above all to manage people and processes well
